

FORGIVENESS/CONTROL

Sometimes I act a bit headstrong.
I'm never too big to admit I'm wrong.

Proverbs 29:11

"A fool gives full vent to his anger, but a wise man keeps himself under control."

Psalm 19:12

*"Who can discern his errors?
Forgive my hidden faults."*

I have two people in my life that I believe need to do some growing up. One of them is very controlling and is hard to forgive.

I believe as humans we think we know it all and what is best for us and others in our lives. This may be true, but God has the wisdom and knowledge to know what is best for us.

God knows right from wrong. After all, He created us.

We can be so headstrong that we lose sight of what is really happening around us. A need for control! What good really comes from it?!

I believe we can misplace the meaning of life by the need to be in control. The people we try to control only learn to resent us, maybe even hate us.

Does God want that to happen?.....I don't think so.

So let's all try to forgive our fellow man and let the one who SHOULD be in control (our Father in heaven), be in control of our mind, body and spirit.

*Dear Jesus, thank you for being in control of my life. I'm thankful every day that I don't have to control everyone in my life and that I am able to forgive people.
Amen*

Submitted by: Lynne Andersen